

VOTERS MUST DECIDE BRIDGE ISSUE

State Guard Loses In House Program Is Blocked By Vote Of Council

STEAM ROLLER TACTICS SENDS BILL TO SENATE

Death Warrant For National Guard Wins In Legislature 61 To 17

MADISON — The Wisconsin National guard lost the second battle in its fight for existence Tuesday when the assembly by a vote of 64 to 14 refused to definitely postpone the Polakowski bill calling for complete abolition of the state's military force. Rules were then suspended by a 61 to 17 vote and the measure finally passed by acclamation.

Eight times friends of the National guard went down to defeat as the steam roller tactics of the coalition between administration forces and Socialists forced the measure safely over every legislative pitfall. As a final victory, those backing the bill suspended the rules for a second time by a 63 to 15 vote, and immediately messaged the measure to the senate for action by that body.

LITTLE DEBATE

There was little debate over the proposal from either of the factions. A caucus of administration members held Monday night decided unanimously to throw its force behind the bill and on the vote carried out this action.

The fight opened when Assemblyman Frank Prescott, Milwaukee, introduced the bill calling for abolition of the guard a "pet measure of the Socialists." To go on record favoring a Socialistic movement would give the state a "black eye," he said.

Assemblyman H. J. Peterson, Milwaukee, spoke in opposition to the measure declaring that the legislature "cannot eliminate something of outstanding credit to Wisconsin in one stroke."

WANTS LOWER TAXES

Assemblyman Sixtus Lindahl, Superior, said that he was supporting the bill as a means of tax reduction inasmuch as abolition of the guard would cut the expense of state government nearly $1,000,000 annually.

Friends of the bill confident of their strength made no open attempt to urge its passage. They offered no debate, but with Assemblyman Thomas Duncan, Milwaukee, Socialist as their spokesman they moved with regularity to push the proposal over every step of the way from the committee through the lower house to the senate.

Assemblyman Prescott moved indefinite postponement. This move was defeated 65 to 14. Peterson then moved a call of the house. There was not enough supporters for this move. Peterson then made a motion to lay the bill on the table. This was voted down by acclamation. Then the proposal was engrossed without a roll call.

At this juncture Assemblyman Prescott charged that Assemblyman Duncan was taking advantage of the absence of members to push the bill. A laugh greeted his suggestion.

Assemblyman Duncan moved at once to suspend the rules and put the bill on final passage. This was successful 62 to 17. Passage was given by acclamation. Once again rules were suspended 62 to 15 and the bill went to the senate.

SENATE VOTES MORE POWER FOR BLAINE

Measure To Increase University And Normal Boards Is Adopted

By Associated Press

Madison—Increase in the size of the board of normal school and university regents to provide for representation of two labor and two farmer members, was voted by the senate Tuesday when it sent to engrossment the Titus bill by a vote of 16 to 9.

This proposal, if enacted by the legislature would give Governor Blaine immediate control of both the university and normal school regents which he now is gradually obtaining by appointments as terms expire. It would give four additional members to each of the boards.

The senate without a record vote engrossed a bill by Senator Barber, limiting the use of injunctions in labor disputes. This proposal would prevent any other than circuit courts or courts of concurrent jurisdiction on equity from issuing restraining orders and then only upon reasonable notice.

VOTE ON COURT ACTION

The assembly voted in favor of a bill by Assemblyman John W. Eder, Milwaukee, to repeal the special verdict statute and enact a statute providing for a general verdict in tort action.

The eight hour day bill by Assemblyman H. G. Tucker, Milwaukee was laid over a day to permit amendment.

Courts Free French Girls Of Yank Mates

Paris—The French civil court made a decision affecting more than 2,000 French girls who married American soldiers and sailors during the war, and who since have been abandoned. It granted a divorce decree to Emilie Sophie Pritchard from Jeffie Pritchard of the United States navy.

Howe, the French court, had refused to hear these, alleging that the girls became American citizens by marriage. Most of the abandoned brides were ignorant of their husbands' addresses in the United States and were condemned to a life without again marrying, causing hardships and forcing them to fall back on their parents for support.

The French precedent permits all other abandoned wives to sue to obtain divorce, if they are unable to locate their husbands, and also permits French wives living in the United States, if dissatisfied with their environment, prohibition, and other causes, to return France and obtain a divorce.

Smuggler Is Principal Contributor To Nation's Liquor Law Violations

Harding Administration Bent on Strict Enforcement—Woman in District Attorney General's Office is in Charge of Prosecutions

(This is the second of a series of seven dispatches written after an exhaustive study of the prohibition question in which President Harding, Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes, Assistant Attorney General William Brandt, Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League, Capt. W. H. Stayton of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition and other leaders submitted to private interviews with the writer and gave their candid opinions on law enforcement and the outlook.)

Washington—Is "bootlegging" on the increase or decrease? The writer has asked that question of practically all with whom he has had interviews. Problems of policy usually enter into the answer. For, if it were to be admitted that "bootlegging" is on the increase, that might be construed as a reflection on the efforts of the enforcement officers and possibly as an ill-effect of prohibition itself. If it were contended that "bootlegging" is diminishing, the statement would be challenged by those people who ardently believe in prohibition but who think even the Volstead law is weak in its criminal features and that public sentiment can only be aroused by painting the true situation.

Obviously the government doesn't have any statistics on "bootlegging." If it did, there would be more arrests and prosecutions. Evasions of the law are conceded.

ENFORCERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Opinions differ as to the significance of "bootlegging." Men like Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes and Wayne Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League are optimists. They have been in the prohibition movement all their lives. They reckon everything in relative terms. They see progress on every side. They are by no means satisfied. They feel that the states must be awakened to their real position and that professional and business men must be reached by appeals to conscience and patriotism. In the department of justice sits one of the clearest thinking individuals in America, Mrs. Mary Walker Willebrandt. She has the title of assistant attorney general. The United States district attorneys in the 48 districts of America are under her direct supervision. She is prosecuting cases without fear or favor. She knows what's going on. And she tells me there's no use concealing the truth—bootlegging in the border states is thriving.

By "border" states is meant the states nearest the coast lines and the Mexican and Canadian boundaries. That means smuggling. Its most difficult and perplexing phase of the whole problem—the central weakness in enforcement of the law. Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Haynes admitted that their hardest job was in combating the smuggler. President Harding himself recognizes the practical difficulties but hopes the United States coast guard and customs services will be brought to a higher state of efficiency within a relatively short time.

COAST LINE IS PROBLEM

Mr. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League thinks the entire power of the army and navy should be marshaled if necessary to uphold the majesty of the law. Canada and Mexico are being constantly besought to help stop smuggling on the international boundary. Unquestionably those sources will be restricted. What can be done on the coast line remains an open question.

The investigating branch of the government hopes to perfect its machinery to the point where distribution will be difficult if not impossible, and violations reduced to the same proportion as other crimes. No one has yet said to me that all bootlegging and illicit distribution of liquor can be stopped. It's entirely a matter of degree.

Whatever impression the public may have that the Harding administration itself will work at law violations can be emphatically denied. There never was a greater misconception of what is going on in Washington. The president is heart and soul for law enforcement. Prohibition Commissioner Haynes is an energetic and capable individual whose fervor on the prohibition question is unsurpassed by Wayne Wheeler himself. And he is gradually eliminating the corruption in the prohibition forces. He gave me some interesting statistics.

RED WINE FALLS OFF

For example, there were 123,000,000 gallons of red liquor consumed annually before the federal amendment was adopted. This was the amount on which taxes were paid so it was possible to compile the data. The exports from Great Britain and other European countries since 1920 show a marked falling off in liquor trade. While much is being smuggled, it isn't anywhere near the amount that used to be imported from abroad.

The impression of all officials is that very little good whisky is being brought into America. Nearly all of (Continued on Page 12)

LLOYD GEORGE ASKS U. S. TAKE HAND IN RUHR

Request Made In House Of Commons Loses In Vote Though Majority May Be In Favor

London—Scant hope for British intervention at this time in the dispute between France and Germany is to be gleaned from Premier Bonar Law's speech in the house of commons Monday evening. The premier concluded the debate on the joint Liberal amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne calling upon the League of Nations with the help of America to investigate Germany's ability to pay reparations. The amendment was lost by a vote of 305 to 196.

The prime minister, answering some of the points of David Lloyd George's appeal to Great Britain and America to save France from what he termed a dangerous position, informed the house that intervention by a League commission as proposed in the amendment, would be considered by France as an act of hostility. He asserted that the government's policy was to keep British troops on the Rhine "as long as possible."

ADmits FRENCH BLUNDER

Replying to Mr. Lloyd George's contention that France had blundered seriously and that America and Great Britain were called upon to act, Mr. Bonar Law said that he too did not approve of the French step, but that opposition apparently could accomplish little or nothing inasmuch as the pride of France in forcing Germany to terms had been aroused. He pointed out that France already refused to look kindly on intervention by the league and suggested that she would hardly be amenable to such a step now.

Mr. Lloyd George, whose sojourn "in the wilderness" has resulted in no impairment of his parliamentary presence, declared that the French action was both short sighted, unfortunate and unwarranted, and that the way was open to disaster. He asserted that the collection of reparations was evidently not the only object France had in view.

Arguing for the nation, the former prime minister said he was asking Mr. Bonar Law to take immediately and with the cooperation of the United States, a step calculated to save the situation. Wealthy America, he declared, still had a share in the responsibility for present conditions because morally it had accepted the entire situation. Mr. Lloyd George expressed the opinion that France, confronted by the United States and Great Britain could not fail to listen to nations that put her in the position of a conqueror. He entreated the government to take the initiative, first by approaching the United States and then with that country approaching France.

Although the sentiments embodied in the joint amendment undoubtedly were approved by a majority of the house, its passage would have required a two-thirds vote of the house and would therefore have meant the government's fall.

Head Of House Of David Must Appear In Court

By Associated Press

Pap Paw, Mich.—Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David, a religious colony of Beuton Harbor, must personally appear in court to answer charges brought by a New York lawyer in an $800,000 damage suit, unless his attorneys find a legal way of preventing the service of a writ of capias before April 25.

In the suit Mrs. Ruth Bamford Reed and Mrs. Gladys Bamford Rubel, who claim to be former members of the colony, seek to recover property alleged to have been turned over to the colony by their wealthy parents when the family joined the colony.

Charges of misconduct by Purnell and allegations that Purnell forced them to marry men of his own choice, are made by the plaintiffs.

Both women, Miss Pauline Stagg, 36, mother of the boy, and her mother, Mrs. Charles E. Stagg, 55, were found in a bedroom of their cottage with bullet holes in their heads. They were from Stratford, Conn., and have been coming to Palm Beach every winter since 1911.

No cause other than grief could be advanced by friends for the cause of the tragedy. Miss Stagg assumed her maiden name two years ago, when she obtained a divorce from Frank E. Council's Action Is Climax To Year's Fight Over Bridge Locations

HAS COST MORE THAN $8,000

Vote Stood 8 To 4 In Favor Of Double Program For Long Period

The shipwreck of the common council's bridge program brings to a climax almost a year's negotiations for the building of the Cherry and Lake-st bridges.

The bridge campaign that had been in progress for years was reopened in the present council on May 3 when that body voted to deposit a surplus of $100,000 from income tax into a treasury to be known as a bridge fund. Nothing was said at that time publicly whether the money was to be used for bridge repairs, or for construction of either of the Lake-st, Lake-st and Cherry-st bridges.

At the same time pressure was brought upon the state highway commission to hasten its decision on the choice location of a viaduct to be built with state and county aid.

HAD HEARINGS

In response to this request, perhaps, the highway commission ordered another public bridge hearing to be held on May 19 in which advocates of both the Lake-st and the Cherry-st viaducts might be heard. Almost the entire commission was present and hundreds of persons crowded the council chamber, so great was the interest attached to the project.

Disappointment was felt by both sides when on July 7 the highway commission announced its decision, declaring while its choice was for Lake-st viaduct, there was not enough funds to assist the city in a project that would cost upwards of $1,000,000.

The Cherry-st forces began at once to rally around the proposition to erect a bridge at that location without either state or county aid. A hearing was made by the council on this decision in the meeting following the highway commission's bridge decision, on July 19, when that body ordered the engineer to secure tentative estimates on the construction of both Lake-st and Cherry-st bridges.

A combined bridge program, it was felt, would satisfy both the Cherry-st and Lake-st proponents.

PLANS ORDERED

When on Aug. 2, Harrington, Howard & Ash, bridge engineers, submitted their estimates of $48,000 on the Lake-st bridge and $150,000 on the Cherry-st bridge, and approximately $30,000 for paving and approaches, the council ordered the engineers to draw the plans and specifications.

At the time of the council's first vote on the bridge matter, that on securing an estimate, Aldermen Smith and Lappen were absent. When a vote was taken to order the drawing of plans for both bridges, it was 7 to 4, as follows: For—Wood, Lappen, Thompson, Laabs, Hassmann, Beske, against—Hansen, Schultz, Callahan, Murphy. Alderman Smith was absent, but joined the advocates of the double bridge program when he returned to the city. The vote at all times thereafter was 5 to 4.

On the evening of Dec. 21 in a committee of the whole session, the council examined the plans for both bridges. No estimates were submitted at that time.

ESTIMATES GIVEN

The estimate submitted by Harrington, Howard & Ash, on the evening of Jan. 2 was $200,000 on the Cherry-st project and $63,000 on the Lake-st project. Estimates did not include cost of paving, approaches, etc.

During the same evening the committee of the whole reported that plans and specifications for both bridges be adopted. On motion to adopt, the vote was again: For—Wood, Lappen, Thompson, Smith, Hansen, Fose, Beske, against—Hansen, Schultz, Callahan, Murphy.

Almanacs Warn Of Sleet Storm Again Feb. 22

Have you stocked your home with salt? Have you provided yourself with candles? Have you attached chains to your automobile tires? Have you dispatched all the necessary mail? Do you contemplate taking a railroad trip this week? If so, you had better leave at once.

For on Thursday, Feb. 22, Washington's birthday, almost as well known here as the anniversary of the 1922 disastrous sleet storm, this region has been promised a repetition of last year's events. That is, if faith can be placed in the weather almanacs.

Many Appleton residents are seriously expecting another sleet storm on that day. Indeed, they have several almanacs on their side, one of them predicting snow for Wednesday, sleet on Thursday and storms on Friday. Another is quoted thus: "The period of Feb. 18 to 21 will end much colder, with heavy sleet and snow."

Separate Vote To Build Lawe-st Bridge Fails Of Sanction By One Vote

TWO BOLT CHERRY-ST SIDE

Motion To Reject Cherry-st Bids Follows Death Of Lawe-st Move

Appleton will have no bridge at Lawe-st and none at Cherry-st so far as the common council is concerned, but the people will have a chance to express their wishes through a bridge referendum at the primary election in March.

Last hopes of the Lawe and Cherry-st factions that the council would award contracts for the bridges faded when the council at a meeting held Monday afternoon failed to muster a majority vote in favor of building the Lawe-st structure and voted by a majority of one to reject bids for the Cherry-st bridge. This meeting followed a heated session of the council as a committee of the whole occupying practically the entire afternoon.

Mayor Henry Reuter was not called upon either time to cast his vote, because, as expected, he did not occur. The vote in favor of accepting the Construction company's bid to build the Lawe-st bridge stood 6 to 5, but the law indicates that there must be a majority vote of the council rather than of the members present for the expenditure of so large a sum of money as the bridge would require. This would mean that the vote must be 7 to 6, and as Alderman James A. Wood is absent on a western business trip the vote would have to be 7 to 5. Mayor Reuter declared the motion lost on this basis.

Hanson of the First ward made a motion for building a bridge at Lawe-st and this was seconded by Alderman Walter Schultz of the Sixth ward.

When this motion was lost, Alderman Hanson presented another declaring that all bids for construction of the "Cherry-st" structure be rejected. The vote was 6 to 5 in favor of the motion, which Mayor Reuter ruled was sufficient to carry the motion. No money expenditure was involved in the motion, and a majority of those present was all that was required.

APPROVE REFERENDUM

With the council thus on record as desiring to build neither bridge and a sum of more than $8,000 expended in preparation of the plans by Harrington, Howard and Ash, engineers, the aldermen believed the matter should not be dropped entirely. In face of despatch a motion was made by Alderman Laabs that the people of Appleton be permitted to express their wishes through a referendum at the primary election March 20. This was carried. The ballot probably will contain these two questions: Shall Lawe-st bridge be built? Shall Cherry-st bridge be built? It will not include the bonding of the city unless the council so votes in the meantime, but will mean the withdrawal of the necessary money from the general treasury and the borrowing of enough to run the government in the meantime.

It was stated several days ago that the Cherry-st bridge program would be defeated because two of the aldermen who had supported it from the start had switched and would vote against it. This proved to be true, for Aldermen Lappen and Beske, Cherry-st advocates, voted for the Lawe-st bridge and for rejection of Cherry-st bids.

DIVISION IS PLAIN

There were indications that one group of aldermen would vote for a bridge at one point only if another would support their wishes. The vote seems to prove this, for those who voted against Lawe-st bridge were the ones in each case who opposed the motion to reject the Cherry-st bids. Those in favor of Lawe-st in favor of rejecting Cherry-st bids were Aldermen Beske, Lappen, Callahan, Hansen and Schultz.

Those opposing Lawe-st structure and opposing rejection of Cherry-st bids were Aldermen Laabs, Fose, Smith, Hassmann and Thompson. The twelfth man, Alderman Wood, as stated above, was absent.

Aldermen Lappen and Beske were understood to have changed their stand when they believed it evident that the cost of the bridges would exceed $200,000 as shown by the bids and estimates of preparing the approaches. They favored building one of the bridges now and the other (Continued on page 12)

RELIGIOUS SIDE OF Y. M. C. A. WORK WILL BE PUSHED

Werner Assists In Plans For Extensive Home And Foreign Work

George F. Werner, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has returned from a meeting of the cooperating committee of international home work and international foreign work of the Y. M. C. A., composed of members of the international committee of the ten central states with headquarters in Chicago.

Besides members of the international committees there are from one to three secretaries from each state on these committees secretaries who handle the business end of both the home work and foreign work, and a number of secretaries from foreign fields who are home on a furlough. Practically all departments of the Y. M. C. A. were represented.

The meeting was held in the university club. Dr. John R. Mott, head of the Y. M. C. A. in North America, gave a survey of the opportunities of the Y. M. C. A. at present and called attention to the urgency of putting on a field program because of the need of this work especially in mission lands. Dr. Mott went to Chicago direct from Springfield, Ill., where he held a religious work institute similar to the one he is to hold in Milwaukee on March 5.

Dr. Mott spoke also of the tremendous need and opportunity for pushing religious work in the Y. M. C. A. and in cooperating with the churches. He is giving four months of his time to the promotion of religious work throughout the country, and from Chicago went to West Bend, Ind., to conduct another institute.

Three international secretaries visit the regional committees in each of the four regions of the country and go over the budgets for the international work. These budgets are distributed among the various states and associations. Each gets its quota to raise during the year.

I SPIED TODAY

SHOW WAS EFFECTIVE

Saturday while attending the show at the Elite Theatre I noticed a man who was next to me crying. Evidently the man must have had an argument with his wife before leaving home and when the end of the show came and the sad part entered where a man who had left his wife returned to her and begged her to forgive him. The man seeing this part and undoubtedly thinking that he was in practically the same condition burst into tears. Several of the patrons of the theatre looked around and were somewhat entertained at this occasion. T. S.

STRINGING 'EM ALONG

Saturday night while I was in Schabo's meat market an elderly woman came in to get her meat. As she took the meat the string from the ball got caught on her coat sleeve and she walked out of the store with the string trailing behind her down the street. She did not see the string on her coat and might have walked away home but a little lad standing nearby pulled the string back. H. P. H.

SNOW MAKES BACKSTOP

About three o'clock Sunday afternoon I saw two fellows playing ball on a sidewalk on State-st. although there were drifts of snow about the feet high along the walk. The drifts seemed to afford a good backstop because the ball never rolled far after it hit the drifts. J. D.

THAT'S EASY, THREE DEEP!

Seridines in a box have nothing on what I saw Saturday night at 11 o'clock on Lawest near Washington. A Ford "coop" came to a sudden stop at the corner. I turned to find the reason why. A door opened and out came six sizable adults—three men and three women. Only one, the driver, was able to stand firmly on his feet. The others started kicking, gubbing backs, stretching necks and generally unlimbering. I learned later that the sextette had traveled 15 miles in the "coop." I've been trying to figure out ever since where they all put themselves. J. O.

DOES THINGS BY THE CLOCK

Monday evening I was in a grocery store when a farmer came in. He walked to the radiator to warm himself and started picking the icicles off his beard. Finally he looked at the clock and said "Hum, six o'clock is time to eat" and so saying went to a bunch of bananas and helped himself. The look in his eye made the proprietor and I burst out laughing. Mrs. T. R. N.

OTHERS SAW IT TOO

Four reports of this accident were sent to the I SPIED EDITOR, but the one's whose initials are signed below was the first to arrive. At 10:30 Sunday morning I saw a horse and a cutter lying on the corner of Union and North-sts. A young father had taken his two little girls out for a cutter ride and the horse's hoof and the cutter runner became caught in the track switch. The thrill was broken and the horse slightly cut from

Smothered By Gas

One of the most harrowing experiences possible to describe is that awful smothering sensation caused by gas pressure about the heart. Such an attack may be accompanied by choking and gagging, extreme nervousness, heart palpitation, pain, high blood pressure or various forms of stomach distress.

If you wish to avoid these smothering spells and their evil effects, take Baalmann's Gas Tablets before and after meals. There will be no more gas pressure round heart or lungs, no shortness of breath, no palpitation, no bloating, no discomfort. You will eat better, sleep better and feel better.

Go today and obtain a dollar package of Baalmann's Gas Tablets from Schintz Bros. Results from the very first dose will amaze you. J. Baalmann, Chemist, San Francisco, adv.

PUT ON A FREE SHOW

A free show was put on Sunday night on the south side of Eggert's hotel. We were coming along the street and heard what resembled singing and when we reached the hotel we saw two girls having a grand time putting on some classic dances. They were singing at the top of their voices. It was a show, good for nothing. A. S.

TOM MIX STUFF

A gay young Lothario Sunday, while starting out for a brisk gallop on his prancing steed, suddenly found himself lying flat on his back near the carbarns on the flats, while the no longer prancing steed lay on its back right next to him.

The horse, becoming frightened at the street car, decided to stand on its hind legs, as has been the way of horses since the beginning of time, and when the rider saw that the animal was sure to lose its balance and go over backward, he gave a very skillful leap, throwing himself on his back and narrowly escaping what would undoubtedly have proven a very serious accident.

To add to the young man's heroism he was the first one to catch the horse's bridle when he had righted himself and started running away. J. K. P.

"SPRING MERCHANDISE MOVER"

Starts Tomorrow and Continues For Just 10 Days. The Newest Spring Merchandise in Stock in Some Cases Will Sell As Low As 1/2 Price.

"Merchandise Mover"—this is one event that is different from the usual sale. It is a sale in the respect that prices are reduced; it is a "Merchandise Mover" in the respect that our prices have been cut so radically, that our merchandise is bound to move, and that to call it a mere sale would be an injustice. New Merchandise at One-half its original value, in some cases, isn't that an inducement? Not a "Clearance," not a "Clean-up," not a "Close-out," but regular old fashioned slashing of prices, and making friends.

KILLING THE GOOSE

Every proposed law should be measured. Its virtues and its shortcomings should be weighed. If it does not transgress the constitution and the need for its benefits is greater than the harm which it may inflict here and there, then there is no good reason why it should not be enacted.

The administration at Madison proposes to pass a law removing the secrecy clause of the Wisconsin Income Tax Law and making the income tax return of every individual, co-partnership or corporation in the state public property. This is a step out in the dark. We do not find that any commonwealth which has an income tax law has ever provided this degree of publicity. No one can say to a certainty what the result will be. Possibly it may be trivial but more likely it will be highly injurious.

What is the purpose of this radical departure from our existing system? What is to be gained? Where will the benefit lie? What harm may be done?

The administration claims that the state will be benefited in that the proper tax authorities will receive such a flood of information from the public concerning the tax returns to those who do not tell the truth as to accomplish the detection of false returns and the recovery for the use of the public of the correct amount of taxes from every taxpayer. It is intimated that the larger corporations of the state are evading payment of their just taxes and that the publication of their tax returns will bring from Tom, Dick and Harry the truth that they have concealed. We have not been advised of any other virtue that is claimed for this legislation. The administration claims no other virtue. We do not believe that the claimed advantage of this law will amount to anything. The practical businessman, the tax official whose purpose it is to run down and correct mistaken or fraudulent returns, the man of any kind of experience in the affairs of life, all know that the information that might be vouchsafed by the public wouldn't be worth a pinch of snuff in arriving at true figures. Besides an audit of the books of the corporation, which are always open to the tax officials, an examination of the bookkeepers who make up its records and an interview with those who have had material transactions with it will reveal to the proper authorities whether or not that corporation is making a good faith return to the state of its income. And although the administration's measure will result in the accomplishment of no good whatsoever it might be passed over as the idea of an impractical visionary were it not that its enactment appears to be fraught with sinister harm to every industry in the state as well as every individual. We know that it is a popular thing in Wisconsin to badger business. Men who have an ambition to succeed in political life have been taught that success lies in the support of laws which have for their purpose the annoyance, harassment and injury of the industries of the state. Unfortunately for the commonwealth, the ordinary politician is a man of little experience and less education, who may in good faith but with mistaken judgment advance theories of government which will do us all a lot of harm.

What harm may result from this proposed legislation? What injury to the farmer, worker or businessman? The industries of Wisconsin must compete with similar industries located throughout the several states of the Union. Competition in most businesses is very keen. The Wisconsin industry, competing with a similar Michigan establishment will be greatly handicapped by the enactment of this proposed measure. The Michigan industry, not required to publish its income tax return as is required in Wisconsin, will be able to maintain as against the Wisconsin industry, perfect secrecy as to its affairs and it will have the stupendous advantage of knowing from the income tax return of the Wisconsin industry just exactly the financial condition of its competitor. A Wisconsin corporation is required to file its income tax return in great detail. It does not merely file a statement of the amount of profit it may make over a given period of time. It is required to file the innermost details of its business. It must tell in its income tax return the amount of money that it has paid out for raw materials, for labor, for administration expense; it must divulge also for depreciation charges the original cost of its plant and equipment, what it pays out for every sort of conceivable expense and what it receives by way of every conceivable avenue of income. When this detailed statement of its business becomes public and in this manner is learned by its competitor, the Wisconsin industry is at the mercy of any similar industry from a neighboring state. The Wisconsin industry will be nearly powerless to compete under such circumstances. It will know nothing of the business of its competitor, whereas its competitor, knowing all the innermost details of its business, will know exactly how far to go in depriving the Wisconsin industry of the business which otherwise it could secure. This, it seems to us, will create a havoc which our lawmakers might well examine with minute care before they sponsor it. We pass over many other items of harm, that will result from the proposed legislation, but when, without gaining any advantage whatsoever to the people of the state, we cripple or paralyze our own industries, we should reckon carefully upon the result because it will be far-reaching. The industries of Wisconsin pay into our state treasury every year many millions of dollars. If these millions were not paid out of the profits of these industries they would have to be paid out of the more slender income of others or by a real estate tax. Every taxpayer in Wisconsin is interested in having Wisconsin industries secure all the business to which they are legitimately entitled. An industry that is prosperous can and will pay to its workers better wages and can and will pay to the state taxes in proportion to its prosperity. We believe ardently in the principle of our income tax law, that individuals and corporations should pay taxes in proportion to their ability to pay. But beyond that it is the duty of the Government of the state not to hamper or cut the throats of Wisconsin's industries by delivering over to their non-resident competitors their business secrets, at no advantage to the state itself but at tremendous advantage to the competitor and ruin and disaster to the home industry. Does any intelligent businessman doubt that paper mills located without the borders of this state would willingly give tens of thousands of dollars to learn the business secrets of Wisconsin paper mills, which under this new law will be handed to the non-resident paper mills upon a silver platter and for nothing?

With our eyes open to the knowledge that the proposed law can accomplish no good but that it may so curtail the prosperity of Wisconsin's industries as to throw the burden of their taxes upon the other people of the state, can any individual, whatever his walk in life, intelligently support it?

This proposed measure may be enacted into law. Doubtless the administration at Madison has sufficient strength in the legislature to accomplish its will and if the proposed act becomes law its harmful results may not be felt for two or three years, but at the end of that time the small taxpayer, already staggering under his heavy load, may realize that his burden of taxation has grown because impractical politicians by publishing broadcast the details of the affairs of Wisconsin's industries have turned their business over to their non-resident competitors making it impossible for them to pay income taxes as they now pay them, depriving each community of its share of their prosperity, and throwing the tax burden upon the land owner and the man of small income.

WHY TEETH DECAY

Well, this is a long story, full of confusion and discord. The doctors and the dentists are pulling and hauling apparently at cross purposes and the dentifrice manufacturers are trying to agree more or less with everybody and the public is all balled up. Let's see if we can make head or tail of it.

Somebody made a noble effort to crystallize the inarticulate thought in an epigram. A clean tooth never decays. That made a great hit with, oh, a lot of folks also some dentists and doctors and schoolmarm and social workers and the like. I scarcely dare refer to it in a questioning spirit, for just as surely as I betray a doubt about the value of brushing the teeth, all the social workers, schoolmarm, etc., think and some of them utter scathing rebukes in the course of which they wonder whether I was brought up in a sawmill or a stable. Some dentists—I suspect quite a number of dentists are like that. They think soap (in disguise, of course) is synonymous with brushing. And some schoolmarm, etc., harbor a similar notion. La-de-da, you know.

Now the reasoning on which the epigram is based is very plausible, the mucus or film on the surface of the teeth includes bacteria with particles of carbohydrate (starch or sugar); the carbohydrate goes on fermentation by the bacteria, resulting in the formation of lactic acid (same acid as that of butter, milk or sour milk). The lactic acid then dissolves the lime (calcium) salts in the enamel of the teeth and there you have a cavity which affords a fine opening for other bacteria, especially the putrefactive types, so that the cavity becomes a pocket full of poison.

This is all sweet enough. It appeals strongly to the la-de-da intellect and the young lady across the way, if you know what I mean. Yet it has some weak points. It doesn't account for the fine teeth of the sugar cane sucking pickaninnies nor for the beautiful, white, even, sound teeth of little Italian kids on their arrival in America from the rural parts of the old country where carbohydrate, if not candy, is freely fed to children. It doesn't account for the fact that animal's teeth show little tendency to decay. And experimentally it seems impossible to demonstrate any such effect—animals fed with large amounts of sugars and of white flour showed no dental decay as a result, although sugar adhered to their teeth constantly and the fermentative types of bacteria were found constantly present in the mucus or film on their teeth.

The truth is that the film is rather a protection to the teeth, in my judgment it is a mistake to remove that film or mucus coating by means of alkalies, acids or soap, as a general rule. It may be advisable in certain individual pathological cases.

Teeth decay because the diet is faulty. The food is poor in vitamins. It lacks calcium (lime) salts (which are too thoroughly removed from foods in process of manufacture).

Another curious fact recently noted by scientific workers is that the system can better appropriate its calcium and phosphorus quota, even from a defective diet, if the body receives plenty of sunlight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Tapeworm Myth

Do you think that because I can eat most anything at any time during the day and because I weigh 185 pounds that there is any reason to believe I have a tapeworm?—J. M. C.

Answer—No, but if tapeworms really had such an insatiable appetite as the popular myth implies, it might be a good idea for you to keep a few of them, to save you from the health-destroying and life-shortening effects of overeating. Persons who really have tapeworm do not suffer any serious ill health, as a rule, nor are they more voracious eaters than persons who have no tapeworm. Infestation with tapeworm is an accident which may happen to anybody who eats raw or partly cooked beef or pork.

Checking Up On Father

I am 13 years old and was taken out of school last winter because I was not well. Now my father says I should go to bed at 8:30 o'clock and get up at 7:30 o'clock and drink a quart of milk a day. I am five feet three and weigh 124 pounds. We have put the proposition up to you to decide.—Ruth E. L.

Answer—Of course I do not know what your trouble may be or may have been, but on general principles I should concur with father although 10 hours of sleep may be sufficient for the average girl of your age.

Q. Do courts in England, France and Italy have the power to set aside laws enacted by the national legislative body on the ground that they are unconstitutional? H. U.

A. These countries have no courts that are given such power.

Q. Is Washington north or south of the Mason and Dixon line? F. A. T.

A. The City of Washington lies a little to the south of it. Washington is in latitude 38° 53' while the Mason-Dixon line is in latitude 39° 43' 26'.

Q. What is the exact meaning of carte blanche? F. D.

A. Carte blanche is a blank sheet of paper with an authoritative signature to be filled up with such conditions as the person to whom it is given may decide; hence the general meaning, absolute freedom of action.

Q. What was the first use made of glass? P. M. T.

A. The bead is probably the oldest form in which glass was used. It was one of the first objects adopted for personal ornaments.

Q. Was it ever proposed to make Patrick Henry dictator of Virginia? N. D. E.

A. The scheme of dictatorship in Virginia was broached and without his knowledge or consent Patrick Henry was spoken of for the post, in the midst of the agitation, Archibald Cary met Henry's half-brother and delivered his famous threat: "Sir, I am told that your brother wishes to the day of his appointment shall be the day of his death, for he shall find my dagger in his heart before the sunset of that day." The project was speedily abandoned.

Q. Who invented the cash register? B. N.

A. The modern cash register was invented by Jacob Ritty, of Dayton, Ohio, patented in 1879, it being suggested to him by the dial on a steamship which recorded the number of revolutions of the propeller.

Q. Does a deer lose its horns every year? J. A. H.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that deer shed the outer portions of their horns annually. When this horn falls off, a soft velvet-like substance remains, which gradually hardens into horn. This shedding takes place during the breeding season. Ordinarily, one prong develops each year, but at times some animals will develop more.

Q. Who said that the history of the world is the history of the great men who have lived in it? S. C. A.

A. Perhaps you refer to the quotation from Carlyle's "Heroes and Hero Worship": "As I take it, universal history, the history of what man has accomplished in this world, is at bottom the history of the great men who have worked there."

Q. How many Germans are there in Wisconsin as compared with other states? M. D.

A. Wisconsin ranks third in number of German inhabitants. There are 255,650 Germans in New York, 205,491 in Illinois and 151,250 in Wisconsin. In proportion to state population, however, Wisconsin ranks first as almost 6 per cent of her people are Germans. More than 3 per cent in Illinois are German, and a little less than 3 per cent in New York.

Q. What line owned the Lusitania? E. T.

A. It was owned by the Cunard Line.

Q. What is the origin of the use of mistletoe, holly and Christmas greens? O. L. D.

A. This use of evergreens pre-dates Christmas. The celebration of Christmas is a Christian adaptation of the earlier Roman Saturnalian festival, which itself had a spiritual meaning. These Roman revels stood for the brotherhood of man and John Addington Symonds in his Sketches and Studies in Italy and Greece says "we are perhaps practicing a Roman virtue to this day when at Christmas time our hand is liberal and we think it wrong that the poorest wretch should fail to feel the pleasure of the day." Holly, box, ivy, laurel, and bay adorned the Roman houses at this time. The Druids, too, kept a winter festival. The priests sent sprigs of holly to each rude Briton hut, partly as a peace offering, partly as a reminder to decorate the homes with it and thereby encourage sylvan spirits to enter and drive away frost and winter. It remained for those of Christian faith to add to holly, mistletoe and other evergreens, other symbolism. In the dead midwinter, the live freshness of the greens is a reminder of an everlasting life.

Find Fossil Of Rhino In China Desert

New York—The fossil skeleton of the Baluchitherium, prehistoric rhinoceros as big as an elephant, which was dug up in the Gobi desert, Mongolia, by the third Asiatic Expedition of the museum of natural history, was described in detail for the first time today by Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the museum. The disinterment of the Baluchitherium from its two-million-year response in sandstone beds of the Altai mountains was sealed by the Osborn "sons" of the greatest discoveries in the history of paleontology.

The ancient rhino stands twelve feet high and extends twenty-four feet from snout to tail. It is the largest land mammal, with the exception of the mastodons, that ever lived. Unlike its descendants of today, it had no fighting horns, unnecessary armaments, according to President Osborn, thanks to its enormous bulk and the toughened thickness of hide. The perfect preservation of the skull shows a pair of 3-inch tusks and a heavy set of teeth, which characterize the browsing animal. The eye-socket is as big as a man's fist.

The expedition, under the joint auspices of the museum and Asia magazine, includes a camel caravan of seventy-five and five motor cars. The first desert discoveries were made at Iren Tobusu. A group of dinosaurs, 5 million years old, first were unearthed. They were composed of skeletons similar to fossils found in the lance formations of Montana and Wyoming. Mammals, precisely like the upper eocene specimens of Northern Utah next came to light. These discoveries proved the connection and relationship of America with Asia millions of years ago.

Must Teach Religion To Calm World

Dr. Hargraves Compliments Training School In Address Last Night

The great significance of modern religious education was strongly emphasized Monday evening by Dr. C. P. Hargraves of Chicago, secretary of the Foreign board of Sunday schools of the Methodist church, who gave the address during the assembly period at the community training school. Dr. Hargraves has recently returned from a tour around the world during which time he studied the conditions of practically every country. He came to Appleton with an exceptionally interesting message for his audience.

Dr. Hargraves primarily gave his reasons for the situation in the world today saying the social, moral and industrial problems make religious education imperative. In his opinion the solving of the present day problems must be done through adequate religious training. He stated the nations of the world have not reached the principal of Christianity and until they do strife, revolutions and class depression will predominate. The nations must start at once, said Dr. Hargraves, to train christian states men who will have moral and religious bearings.

The speaker spoke especially of the thorough work of the Appleton program of religious training, its Bible school and its evening training school for leaders. He complimented the workers on the work so far accomplished and urged them to go on with the view of making Appleton a real center for religious education.

The attendance at the school Monday evening was good and included a number of visitors.

Will Surprise Teacher With Class Program

Pupils in the sixth grade of the Lincoln school will put on a program at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon which will be a surprise to the teacher in that she has had nothing to do with the planning of it. The program is being given for Washington's birthday and will illustrate events in his life.

Each row in the grade appointed a chairman to make arrangements for its part in the program. The dramatization of the events and all the properties, costumes and scenery for the occasion are being thought out and furnished by the children themselves without any aid from the teacher, who is Miss Jean Jackson.

ANTI SALOON LEAGUE FACING SENATE INQUIRY

By Associated Press
Washington—Senator Francis P. Vreeland to determine source of income and manner of expenditure of funds of the Anti Saloon league promises to add zest to the closing days of congress according to plans now being discussed.

Within a few days a resolution is to be introduced authorizing the appointment of a committee, which would sit during the recess, for examination of officials of the Anti Saloon League, national and state, clothed with power of subpoena witnesses and demand production of books, under penalties for refusal. This project is the outgrowth of the investigation of charges in New York that funds contributed to the league in that state were diverted to personal, or secret uses by State Superintendent William H. Anderson.

RECREATION LACK IN TOWNS DRIVING GIRLS TO CITIES

Illinois Vigilance Head Sees Reason Why Young Women Go Wrong

Chicago—The small town, according to Dr. Philip Yarrow here, stands indicted for unwittingly driving hundreds of unsophisticated girls into the growing street-life hordes of the big cities.

The cause, he says, is lack of proper recreational facilities in the country town.

As state superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance Association, Yarrow bases his charge upon startling revelations brought out in a grand jury investigation of Chicago's allegedly protected red light district.

"These girls come to the big city with pure purposes and intent, but fall prey to its snares because they are not adapted to the conditions and environment thrust upon them," he says.

"Better that they did not come at all."

"Make the small town attractive enough for them to stay there. There is not reason why this can't be done. Civic far-sightedness could bring that about."

"Seventy per cent of the victims of vice I have found are recruited from small towns."

"They are not bad at heart, but merely poor misguided creatures tossed up in the social upheaval of prevalent unrest. They want to get away from the taffy pulling parties in the village and other mediocre amusements which seem to pall on them."

"Solution of the whole problem lies in education. By reaching young people of high school age with recreational interests which are not suggestive or risqué, and directing their surging ambitions into wholesome channels, an effective cure to the whole difficulty can be instituted."

"At least it will keep girls down on the farm where they belong until the dangerous age of adolescence has passed, and they have arrived at the period in life when sound horse sense can steer them away from the hallucinations and pitfalls waiting on Broadway."

But there was one at Paradise who watched her with anxious and troubled heart—Briston, who had seen the girl grow up and loved her in a half paternal way.

"There's something new come to her," he told himself, smoking in the dusk beside the talking spring. "Now that the hell can't be found, she's been to find it!" and he thought anxiously of that night at Hunnewell's.

He made a few gentle probes into Val's confidence, but for once in his knowledge of her he got nowhere, found nothing he wanted or did not want to know.

Val Hannon was her father's daughter. John Hannon had loved once—and with every fibre of his heart, brain and body.

She did not know it yet, but every faithful nerve and pulse within her was awakening to the gentleness and vital charm of the man from Oblivion whose reckless blue eyes were beginning to hold such a keen gleam when he looked at her.

And so it was that she rode more often to Refugio and sat in Father Lillaire's garden. That sharp and kindly man studied her with more interest than did Briston, for he knew a sad deal more.

"My daughter," said Father Lillaire, one day, "are you happy?"

The long brown orbs flashed up at him with so swift and tell-tale a light that the wise priest was answered.

"Yes, father," she said simply. "I am—but for one thing."

The other sighed.

"You have known me all your life, Val," he said. "Have I ever advised you wrongly in all that time?"

"No, father," she said wonderingly.

"Would you listen to me now—if I advised something that might make you less happy?"

"I should listen and heed you, father, if I were dead," said the girl gravely.

For a long time Father Lillaire looked out along the land, his fingers tapping in the worn top of the table.

Then he sighed again and shook his silver head.

"Ah, well," he murmured, "perhaps 'tis just as well. As I said once before—it is in higher Hands than mine."

"Eh?" queried Val.

"I was only testing your loyalty, dear child. I meant nothing."

And then, one day a little later, Velantrie rode into the garden on the good white horse—and he was doubly answered, for the look that leaped into Val Hannon's face was the "light that never was on land or sea" and she rose from her chair and went to meet the stranger as helplessly as the needle to the steel.

The man dropped from his saddle to strike a palm to her—and for once in their friendship with him they had both forgotten the padre of Refugio.

When they turned to him the priest saw two things instantly—the joy of Val, the dawning struggle of the man.

"Father," said Velantrie, straightly. "I am in deep waters."

"Yes, my son."

"I merely tried my eyes to the fair shores for a fleeting comfort—or I drifted out to sea, beyond all hope."

There was a desperate longing in the words, a depth and wistfulness that turned the old man's heart.

He turned from them without a word, pacing the far end of the garden with his hands behind his back and his rosary swinging at his knee.

Val Hannon listened to this my-side speech open-mouthed, for she did not understand. Then Velantrie took her hand for a moment and smiled down at her—and it was as if she had known him always.

He kept the speech to the commonplace, the pleasant badinage of friends, and talked of far places and distant town—but nothing on earth could have silenced his blue eyes, nor the tell-tale tightening of his lips from the time when their smile became too soft.

Velantrie was a man who mastered self, and he meant to do just as he had told the father—look for a short time—he meant to make it short—perhaps a trip or two more—at the fair green shores before he drifted out for good and all.

So he looked into Val Hannon's eyes, and his own blue ones said "I love you," with every glance, while his lips spoke trifles and laughing jests.

"At last he rose and took his leave and the two in the garden watched him go.

As he swung from the gate Val's eyes begged mutely. "You will come back!" and he hesitated—then dashed "I will."

Father Lillaire stood in the gate and sadness sat upon him like a garment, and the girl touched him twice before he turned.

"What is it, father?" she asked anxiously. But he shook his head again.

"Nothing that I can speak of," he said.

And all the way home to Paradise she troubled over the vague speech—what time she could take from the glowing dreams that people the hush heavens and covered the world with light.

CHAPTER XIV

The Stirring Talk

John Hannon came back to Paradise. In the gold and crimson light, wash of a summer's dusk they heard the far, faint sound of horse's hoofs, and their whose hearing was marvellously acute, caught it first.

She rose from a chair in the shadow of the patio and held out a hand for silence.

"Hush!" she said, and Val and Briston, who were talking, became quiet. Perly's cigar trailled off his under lip as he listened, for they all acknowledged Belle's superior ears.

"It," she strained her every faculty for a tense second, then her face seemed to break in a thousand places to let her spirit flash out—"it's Lightning's stride!" she cried, "it's John!"

And it was John—John Hannon in the flesh, who rode straight to the patio and, swinging stiffly from his saddle, caught her to his breast. He neither looked at nor spoke to any other for a time—he held this woman whom he loved upon his heart and said no word to any. Between these two none were needed.

But Belle's hands trembled on his shoulders and her transfixed face was white as milk. She clung against him with all her strength and the breath fluttered on her lips with ecstasy. And presently the boss swung her around in the bend of the forearm.

"Well," he said pleasantly, "how's everything?"

"Fine," said Briston, gripping the outstretched hand, "fine as silk! Glad you're back, though, John."

With a long sweep of his huge arm John Hannon caught his daughter and brought her in against him on the other side.

Val, contained as himself, but smiling with deep joy, laid her soft fingers over his big hand and gripped it hard. The long dark eyes she turned up to him were his own to the last sweep of lash, the last crinkle that attended them in laughter.

"It's been a long time, old man," she said affectionately, "and your women have been true to you. They've watched the trails at dawn and dusk—they've fairly ached to see your face, sometimes."

With one of the rare, the very rare, caresses that passed between them John Hannon bent and kissed his daughter's cheek. Then he turned to the riders who came clumping in along the stone flags, shaking hands and demanding news of the ranch.

To John, who came quietly reaching for Lightning's rein, he gave a pointed look and a sharp word of direction. It was needed for the beautiful gelding stood in the dusk with hanging head and dull eyes, his erstwhile sleek coat caked with dust and cut by truckling sweat. His slim legs trembled with fatigue, his nostrils shook with the heavy breaths that rattled in his sides.

"Great," Peter, John, said. Perly wondered, "but you've put the red boy through!" The Black Rustler bent chasing "you?"

The boss laughed and ran a hand through his thick gray hair, while he tossed his heavy hat away.

"Not exactly, but I was in a hurry to get home. Been gone long enough—oh, Belle, my girl!"

"Oh, John," said Belle, and the word was eloquent.

"An' as I said before," he continued, "there's somethin' lyord-nary in that Lightning's horse. I'd stake a lot on him if I was ben' chased, for he's got the wind an' 'a' stayin' stuff of the Redstar himself, if not the speed. I'd stake a lot on him."

Both these trots are played with the finesse and power that Isham Jones so well knows how and when to apply.

WILL DECIDE TIE ON ORATIONS AT RIPON ON FRIDAY

Everett Hall Will Represent
Lawrence—Is First Tie
In State

Preparations are being made for the oratorical contest between Lawrence and Ripon which will decide the tie at the annual Wisconsin inter-collegiate oratorical contest at Carroll college on Thursday. The dual contest will take place at Ripon on Friday evening and will be judged by a new set of expert judges. Everett Hall is the Lawrence orator.

This is the first tie of winners in the history of the state association although it has occurred twice in the interstate contest. Because of the transportation difficulties, the contest was held in an unusual manner with the Lawrence, Carroll, Beloit and Milton orations on Thursday evening and the Ripon speech on Friday morning when that orator was able to reach Waukesha. Some people who favored the Lawrence oration feel that had the orations been given on one occasion there would have been no doubt of the decision, while others claim that Ripon has the best orator for several years.

Judging for these contests is done in a different way than is usual. Each orator is judged by a man from some unprejudiced institution and by the other four orators. Each orator is given a place and a numerical ranking. The decision is based on the places which the schools have been given and on the numerical sum of their rankings.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and breaks the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Pinex is so good that it gives absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., El. Wayne, Ind.

High School Sends Congratulations to Parents of 124 Students Who Did Good Work During First Semester—Idea Originated in Wichita, Kansas.

Parents of 124 Appleton high school students will have cause to look at their offspring with pride and joy within a short time since congratulatory cards are being sent to them if their children are among those who have been doing entirely satisfactory work in the school. It was found that between ten and eleven per cent of the students of the high school had an average of 88 or more for the first semester and the parents of these students were notified by mail on Monday of the work of their children.

No set rule was used in determining what students have been doing splendid work. In general, only those students who have an average of 88 in all their work including some students which had been rated at higher or than 90 were chosen. No student who had a failure or near failure in any of his work was included in the list even though he might have had an 88 average.

This idea is being used at Appleton high school for the first time. It is used in the Wichita, Kansas school where Dr. E. H. Brooks' brother, La Verne Brooks, is principal and it was through him that Lee C. Rasey heard of the idea and made use of it.

DEDICATION WILL BE COMMEMORATED SUNDAY

Plans for celebrating the sixteenth anniversary of the dedication were announced at the services Sunday at St. Paul Lutheran church. The program will occur next Sunday, Feb. 25, in honor of occupation of the present church edifice. There will be three services, two in the morning and one in the afternoon. The full program is to be announced later.

You Catch Cold Easily?

When you allow your strength to rundown and your body becomes weakened and susceptible, that is just the time that you invite the cold and cough that follows germ-infection. Keep your body strong and well nourished — take as a means of guarding against the breaking down of the resistive powers of the body. The rich, energizing qualities of Scott's Emulsion are quickly digested, and it is surprising how a few bottles build up and strengthen the whole body. Be sure that you buy Scott's Emulsion!

Influenza and Grip are Dangerous

THEY LEAVE THE SYSTEM SODDEN WITH IMPURITIES AND DISEASE BREEDING GERMS

Do not make the error of regarding Influenza and Grip as exaggerated colds. There is a vast difference and at no time is the human body in greater need of the healing, strength producing, rebuilding force contained in Pe-ru-na than when recovering from an attack of Flu or Grip.

PE-RU-NA

Used by Thousands in This Crisis

Precautionary measures now may save a severe illness later. The aim should be to reduce the inflammation of the mucous membranes, stimulate digestion, drive out the poisons, and increase the powers of resistance.

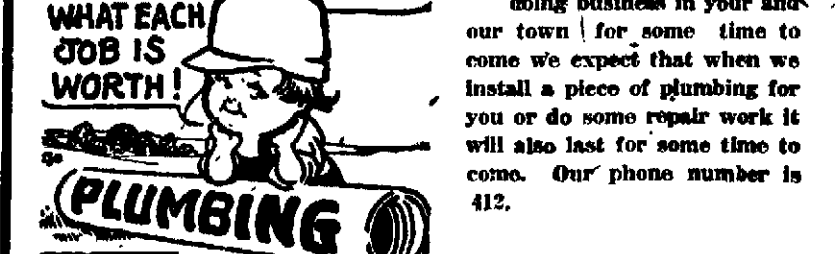

Pe-ru-na tones up and strengthens the entire system. It is a good medicine any time but especially so right now as a protection against these deadly winter diseases which are going the rounds.

Don't be careless. Profit by the experience of such people as Mrs. P. S. Skinner, Box 263, Tobia, Nebraska, who writes: "I keep Pe-ru-na in the house all the time for coughs, colds and pains in the chest. I had pneumonia six years ago and I now use Pe-ru-na to keep from taking it again. I find it great."

Pe-ru-na has been healing the sick and protecting the health of the American people through Grip and Influenza epidemics for more than half a century.

SIMPLIFY PARK SUPERVISION PLAN

Three City Officials Are Made
Park Commissioners
By Council

Supervision of Appleton parks is again to be simplified as a result of the action of the city council naming the mayor, city attorney and city engineer park commissioners and placing them in control of parks, swimming pool and skating rinks.

Under the former arrangement, this supervision was entirely in the hands of the board of public works, consisting of the mayor, city attorney, city engineer and six aldermen. This method sometimes made it difficult to secure prompt action, and meetings of the board proved to be expensive when only trivial matters were to be considered. Until last summer parks were supervised by the street and bridge committee.

By subdividing the functions of the board, the council places the three city officers referred to in charge. The park commissioners are now in position to meet almost on short notice, since all of them retain offices in the city hall.

The park commissioners are authorized to hire the caretakers of the parks, skating rinks and the swimming pool and grant permits to various organizations or parties for the use of parks for picnics, amusement purposes or public or private gatherings and dances.

They are permitted to make annual expenditures for flowers, shrubbery, etc., not in excess of $100 for each park or $40 for each public boulevard, or flower beds located in the streets, or public squares.

Rebuild Chimney

The chimney of Fred Hartsworm's cheese factory in Grand Chute, was rebuilt Saturday after the former smoke stack had been blown down by the blizzard of last week.

HALF A DAY'S WORK TO MAIL A LETTER

Vienna—In the good old days before the war one could buy postage and revenue stamps in any reasonable quantity in any one of the numberless "Kiosks" scattered throughout Vienna. Thus was the public acceptably served, and in the same small shops there were on sale the newspapers of the city and all the many brands of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco of the state tobacco monopoly. The profits gleaned by the keepers of the "Kiosks," often widows, of army officers and civil servants, were sufficient to make life pleasant for them.

Today the profits have gone glimmering, and the sense of duty to the public which moved the "Kiosk" keepers in the days of the dual monarchy is equally lacking. They will no longer bother with postage stamps, and as a result it is after half a day's work to mail a letter. There are but few places in the city where postage stamps may now be bought. To get one often entails a long walk in the first place, and then a wait of sometimes two or three hours in an extended line of angry and disgruntled men, women and children. People not frequently faint in the line.

LEADERS MEET

The training class for boy leaders of the boys division of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon which was led by C. R. Leuse. The meeting of the younger boys an hour later was in charge of John TeSelle, president of Lawrence college Y. M. C. A. The meeting closed with a motion picture.

LAWRENCE AND RIPON PLAY POSTPONED GAME TONIGHT

M'CHESNEY'S MEN TO BATTLE IN LAST HOME GAME OF YEAR

Sprained Ankle Forces Cook, Only Center On Team, Out Of Game

The basketball game between Lawrence and Ripon, which was postponed last Friday due to the rail tieup, will be played in Appleton Tuesday night on the Armory G court.

FINAL HOME GAME

Coach McChesney is hoping to windup the home season with a win and even the 30 to 15 beating Sunday's men handed the Blue and White on Jan. 12. There is only one more game left, on the Lawrence schedule and that will be played Friday night at Waukesha with Carroll college.

It seems as if the jinx means to stay with the Lawrence team throughout the entire season. The Blue and White have been losing through ineptness. Coach McChesney received the latest blow in form of injury. Cook, the only center left on the team since the loss of Grover, sprained his ankle and will not be able to play Tuesday night. Sund who has been alternating as forward and center since the loss of Grover, will be at the pivot position. Kotal will face the visitors from the forward post. He was unable to play the last time the Blue and White traveled to Ripon. Puchner, Jacobson and Zussman will also get a chance at the forward positions. Captain Basing will be the only veteran on the team. He will be depended upon for the major guarding work, while Collins or Christoph will be assigned another defensive spot.

The game will start at 8 o'clock. Coach Denney of the high school, will officiate.

OSHKOSH BASEBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Fans Meet And Promise Support To Beebe-Will Have "Home" Team

By Associated Press

Oshkosh—Baseball fans of this city met together Sunday to discuss the proposition for putting a club into the Wisconsin State league, and so much enthusiasm was shown that there is every reason to believe the Indians will be in the pennant race will be on. Fred Beebe, veteran W. J. and major league player, stated he had decided to take the Oshkosh franchise provided he got sufficient support from the fans and the outlined plans for raising a preliminary fund by selling season tickets, improving the diamond at the fair grounds and organizing a team to be largely local talent. He said it was intended to carry only three or four professional players on each team, the others to be trained from home products.

He named Dr. Gehbe, B. W. Arnold, Thomas Prader, Frank Lundberg and F. E. Keefe as advisory directors and will name a committee of local clubs and societies to confer with the directors. He pointed out that a good baseball team playing Saturday and Sunday games would be a valuable advertisement for any city in the valley.

TABOO PROFESSIONAL BOUTS ABOARD U. S. SHIP

Chicago—Professional bouts aboard the United States Commodore here will be tabooed and in their place will be amateur exhibitions, Captain E. A. Evers, United States Naval reserve announced in a statement made public on his return from Washington.

Evers was present at a conference with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt regarding complaints against professional bouts aboard the ship made by Arthur Burrage Farel, president of the Chicago Law and Order league.

Boxers who appear in contests on board the ship in the future will be selected from army and navy men, Captain Evers asserted. He indicated that the first show under the new ruling would be held about March 3.

"Mr. Farwell objected to Washington that the bouts on the Commodore were brutal displays of fighting and against the law," Captain Evers said. "Bouts between service boxers will be just as 'brutal' as anything that took place in the ring before but we can see nothing harmful in boxing."

POCKET BILLIARDISTS WILL MEET TONIGHT

A match game of special interest is on tap for tonight in the Carr and Hanson billiard room. The contest will be between the teams of Drexler and LeFlore and Havens and Oakes for laurels in the city pocket billiard tournament conducted by the billiard room. Both teams have a clean slate and the tilt is expected to attract an unusual gallery. The game will start at 8:30.

NUSS AND WOLPIN MAY BATTLE HERE ON FEBRUARY 28

Promoter Johnston Promises To Meet Terms Of DePere Slugger

Jimmy Nuss, DePere slugger and artist and with a kick of a mule in his fist, and Billie Wolpin, Appleton scrapper who nearly sent Jack Duffy of Chicago to dreamland last week, will be on a boxing card in Armory G Wednesday Feb. 23, if negotiations carried on by Promoter Johnston go through.

Nuss and Wolpin met six or more months ago at Newberry, Mich. and Wolpin was ordered to quit in the sixth when his nose was broken by a stiff punch by Nuss. Wolpin entered the arena with a broken nose sustained in training with some big boys at Minneapolis.

Nuss fights at 152 pounds and Wolpin promised to meet his weight. Winners in the preliminaries of the last fight will be given a chance to show their wares again.

Johnston has wired Tuesday to Walsh, manager of the DePere slugger that he will meet his terms.

4,200 AT BADGER 'U' ARE 'SPORTS'

Students Take Part In 25 Different Kind Of Athletics, Says Jones

Madison—More than 4,200 men played on athletic teams last year at the University of Wisconsin. That many contestants participated on the 25 different kinds of athletics provided by the department of physical education, according to Professor T. E. Jones, chairman of the men's division in the department.

While intercollegiate athletics, or competition with other universities, was bringing a few into the limelight as members of those teams, thousands of others were playing on teams organized as intramural athletics, or competition between various organizations within the university. Keen competition is developed in intercollegiate, interfraternity, interboarding house, intermilitary company and all-university teams.

There was also competition in sports not fully recognized as varsity sports, such as soccer, skiing, and canoeing. A program for fall, winter, and spring sports provides team experience for every man. The list of participations in the various sports reached 8,625, but some men were listed in more than one.

Track with 2,017 entrants, led in popularity according to the figures compiled by Professor Jones. Baseball, with 952; and basketball with 789, were next on the list. Swimming attracted 650. Tennis had 475 men on teams, and skating, 400. Soccer football recruited 352, crew 320, and canoeing, 300.

Some 200 men played volleyball, and 270 entered in developmental basketball. About 154 men entered cross country teams, 195 bowled, and 160 wrestled. Boxing recruited 150 volunteers, while 700 took boxing as required work and to enter the required tournament. Participation in other forms of sports was divided as follows: ice hockey, 72; gymnastics, 32; fencing, 12; handball, 60; golf, 25; skiing, 37; field hockey, 80, and water basketball, 40.
